September 20

Program Title:	Application of Biofeedback and Neurofeedback in Behavioral Health Care: Possibilities and Potential - 1
Contact:	Ashley Cavender, MA ashleycavender@outlook.com 304-546-2740
Date, Time, & Place:	September 20, 2019 9 – 10:30 AM - Days Inn Flatwoods, WV
Sponsors:	WVAPP
Speakers:	Lori Ellison, Ph.D., LPC, ALPS, Professor and Program Director of Counseling at Marshall University
Notes:	Traditionally talk therapies have been the primary treatment modality of choice for most mental health practitioners. As effective as this had been, recent discoveries in neuroscience and therapeutic research have shown that addressing the physiological aspects of mental health disorders has been more effective in conjunction with traditional therapeutic intervention. This presentation will discuss the modalities of biofeedback, neurofeedback and quantitative electroencephalography and their use with various mental health diagnoses. Approved for 1.5 CE hours

Program Title:	Application of Biofeedback and Neurofeedback in Behavioral Health Care: Possibilities and Potential - 2

Sponsors:	WVAPP
Speakers:	Carol Smith, Ph.D., LPC, Professor and Program Director of Counseling at Marshall University
Notes:	This presentation focuses on the psychophysiology of toxic stress – how overwhelming psychological trauma affects the human brain and body. We will unpack the major effects on the triune brain, the neuroendocrinology of stress, and the negative effects on body systems. We will briefly discuss the implications of Ad verse Childhood Experiences Study, and the relationship between traumatic stress and immune impairment. Approved for 1.5 CE hours

Program Title:	Therapeutic Considerations for Veterans with Trauma Related Disorders
Contact:	Ashley Cavender, MA ashleycavender@outlook.com 304-546-2740
Date, Time, & Place:	September 20, 2019 1:00 to 4:00 PM - Days Inn Flatwoods, WV
Sponsors:	WVAPP
Speakers:	Billy Rutherford, Psy.D., Licensed Psychologist at VA Hospital
Notes:	The rate of PTSD in Veterans of the recent Iraq and Afghanistan conflicts is estimated from 8% to 20%. Veterans of other combat theaters are also known to carry a greater risk for trauma related disorders than the non-military population. This presentation will review several evidence-based therapy options for addressing trauma related symptoms of combat Veterans. Attention will be given to identifying important commonalities in the treatment rationales and interventions among these various models. Unique considerations in applying these commonalities to survivors of combat related trauma in the context of military service and culture will be discussed. Among these considerations will also be an exploration and discussion of co-related concepts such moral injury, suicidality, and co-morbid substance use pertinent to the Veteran population. Approved for 3 CE hours
